

U. S. PLANES ARE FLAMING COFFINS MITCHELL SAYS

Also Says He Has Been Bluffed and Bulldozed
by Department

Washington, Nov. 24—(AP)—Col. William Mitchell reiterated before his court martial today his charge that American aviators were flying in flaming coffins.

Repeating the witness stand for conclusion of his cross examination at the hands of Major Gullion, assistant trial judge advocate, the air officer insisted there had been no increase in safety for the flying men.

Major Gullion developed by questioning the witness that the number of flying hours per fatality for the fiscal year 1921 was 934 while for the fiscal year 1925 the number was 5,269.

"Doesn't this prove that the safety of flying has increased from 1921 to 1925 inclusive, about 550 percent?" Major Gullion asked.

"Misleading statement," Col. Mitchell replied.

"There is no increase in safety. There is a decrease in safety. Our personnel is better trained now than it was in 1921 and flying has been much more restricted. The machines are still flaming coffins."

"Do you not know that flying in the United States is twice as safe as it is in Great Britain?" the witness was asked.

"No."

"Do you not know that flying in the United States is four times as safe as it is in Italy?"

"No, figures can be twisted and moreover our pilots are the best in the world. They can fly faulty machines with less danger than other pilots."

"You said in your statement of Sept. 5, that the pilots know they are going to be killed if they stay in the service, using old flaming coffins."

"I did."

"What old flaming coffins did you have reference to?"

"Criminals' negligence."

"DH's. It constitutes criminal negligence to keep using flying ships of that kind."

Instances of fatalities to fliers were cited, Col. Mitchell attributing them to faulty equipment while in official reports they were attributed to flying at a dangerously low altitude."

"Did you ever hear of a nearly all-metal automobile catching on fire after a collision?" Major Gullion asked.

"Yes."

"Was not this collision then responsible for the fire?"

"Not necessarily."

In the fiscal year 1924, Major Gullion read from records, there were two fatal accidents due to power plant failures in aircraft; 57.7 per cent were due to errors in judgment; four accidents due to structural failures; one to weather conditions and four to unknown causes.

Colonel Mitchell then was asked regarding the charge he made that air officers had been "bluffed and bulldozed" so they did not dare tell the truth to congressional committees.

"I refer to myself principally," he replied. "I was bluffed and bulldozed."

"Did you tell the truth?"

"Yes, but other officers were afraid to tell the truth."

Recalling the air crusader's charge that officers who tell the truth before congressional committees are punished by being transferred to out of the way places, Major Gullion asked:

"Were you sent to an out of way place?"

"I certainly was. I might add I had no command at San Antonio at all."

LOONEY'S CHIEF LIEUTENANT TO GIVE EVIDENCE

Will Confront Him in Trial for Murder of Wm. Gable

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 24—(AP)—After securing four jurors Monday afternoon, the opening day of the John P. Looney trial here, action slowed up materially at this morning's session and the panel was exhausted before an additional four were sworn. The defense excused seven this morning, five for cause and two peremptory and at noon court adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning after an order had been issued for a special venire of 50 jurors. The only head-copied yesterday afternoon was the tentative acceptance by both sides and were sworn in as a special panel. Four others were accepted by the state and were to be examined this morning by the defense.

Looney is to be confronted by Emeal Davis, his own chief lieutenant in the old underworld and himself leader of the colored underworld of Rock Island, it was learned today. Davis, indicted with Looney and held without bail in Rock Island county jail, will be brought to Galesburg by Sheriff Edwards on a writ of habeas corpus when the jury has been selected.

The writ of habeas corpus was issued late yesterday and attorneys for the state discussed with local officers the propriety of bringing him here and placing him in the county jail. Objections to this were made for the reason that Looney and Davis would meet and the state fears that if they do, Looney will intimidate Davis and prevent him from testifying for the state. As a result Davis will probably be lodged in the city jail. Davis, it is alleged, was with the murder crowd the night Gable was killed and will tell the jury here the story of that crime.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ON RAMPAGE; TOOK CHARGE EVANSTON

Police, Firemen, Mayor
Manhandled; Building
Was Burned

Chicago, Nov. 24—(AP)—Defying police pistols, tear bombs and streams from fire hose, 3,000 Northwestern University men and women students last night celebrated the prowess of their football team by rampaging all over quiet and aristocratic Evanston, home town of Vice President C. G. Dawes.

Before their enthusiasm waned early today a vacant frat house was in ashes, a policeman had two broken ribs, four students were in jail, scores had black eyes and cracked heads and Mayor Charles E. Bartlett, nursing a bruised head, declared Northwestern would never have the new stadium it has planned.

The police and firemen were helpless when the jubilee began by pre-arranged plan, about 9 o'clock. The police were stripped of their badges and made the victims of their own maces. Firemen, dashing to numerous alarms most of them false and others resulting from bon fires, had their hose knotted and equipment dumped and scrambled.

Finally after reinforcements of riot squads came from Chicago and forty world war veterans were mobilized by a former service men's organization to aid the police, the students retired to the Lake Michigan front and finished off the evening with bon fires, songs and yells.

President Walter Dill Scott, who had been out of Evanston, returned as the celebration concluded. His only comment was that the burned house was not worth much anyhow, and that the university would not interfere in behalf of students who had violated city ordinances. They would have to stand the consequences of the city courts.

The melee started when students fired the frat house which was to be razed and replaced by a new quadrangle.

The interior had been soaked with oil. Others dined and ignited the old wooden stadium which the university hoped to replace with a concrete structure next year, if its permission was given.

Firemen who responded to alarms and attempted to quench the blazes were stamped by crowds of students. Attempts to quiet them were made by "Tug" Wilson, athletic director, and gridiron stars of the school, Captain Tom Lowry and Ralph Baskin. These succeeded in persuading the students to extinguish the stadium fire.

W. A. Wiltberger, police chief, advised by Evanston as the only chief of police with a college education, attempted to speak, but was cheered and hooted down as the "collegette cop."

Mayor Bartlett, working with firemen to recover lost equipment, was knocked senseless.

When he was revived, he said, the students had lost any opportunity they may have had to build their proposed stadium. "It is evident that if 3,000 students cannot be controlled it would be impossible to take care of 80,000 people if the stadium crowds gave trouble," he said.

The police chief and fire department head were equally wrathful. Orders to shoot down were issued by Chief Wiltberger. Fire Chief Hostetler said his equipment had been stolen, damaged and scattered.

The students under arrest were held in connection with turning in false fire alarms.

Think Rum Runners are Back of Death of Couple

New York, Nov. 24—(AP)—Suspicion that two employees on the country estate of J. P. Morgan at Glen Cove have been murdered by rum runners in the last two years is entertained by Long Island police.

Charles Clayton, a guard on the estate of J. P. Morgan, son-in-law of J. P. Morgan, was shot dead on the night of October 30 last.

A man named Price, an employee of the Morgan estate, died under mysterious circumstances two years ago. Long Island shore property of wealthy persons, guarded only by private watchmen, is believed to have been used extensively by smugglers to land liquor from distant rum row.

The guards whose deaths are under scrutiny are presumed to have known of the smugglers activities.

Like "Jazz"? You are "Potential Musician"

Chicago, Nov. 24—(AP)—If you enjoy jazz music, you are a potential musician.

But you need not wear long hair or indulge in emotional displays of temperament to be a musical genius.

These are conclusions of Miss Ada Bennett Davis in social psychological study of musicians in the University of Chicago.

Enjoyment of jazz is evidence of one of the essential capacities for musical appreciation and expert musicianship "rhythm" she says. It is altogether likely that proper examination and encouragement would reveal many other musical talents in human beings.

WHEAT MARKET SOARED DURING DAY'S TRADING

Unfavorable News From South American is Cause of Advance

Chicago, May 24—(AP)—Soaring prices carried the wheat market to a bushel higher today, almost as soon as trading began. December delivery shot upward to 1.63 1/2 as compared with 1.58 1/2 at yesterday's finish. Reports were current that crop damage was spreading from the north in the center of Argentina.

In subsequent trading the initial gains were outdone, the more distant deliveries, May and July, showing an advance of a fraction above yesterday's close.

Buying fervor was aroused by reports that black rust had developed in the principal wheat areas of Pampas and Buenos Aires provinces, that excessively wet, hot weather was prevailing in the central section of Argentina, a condition likely to make crop injury severe.

Word that all export offerings to Europe from North America since last night had been accepted added to the strength of the market here. Furthermore, Liverpool dispatches represented the market there as excited. Winnipeg prices meanwhile, were more than keeping step with the rapid advance in Chicago.

$336,036,000 Cut in Taxes to be Provided

Washington, Nov. 24—(AP)—The tax reduction bill as completed and unanimously approved by the ways and means committee will go to the House, providing for an estimated cut of $336,036,000 annually in the federal tax burden.

The measure which will be presented by the house on the opening day of congress, Dec. 7, provides relief for every federal tax payer and through increased personal exemptions would relieve more than a million persons from payment of any federal tax.

The principal portion of reduction is given to income tax payers whose annual burden would be cut by $193,575,000 beginning with taxes to be paid in the next calendar year. Cuts in normal rates and surtaxes account for most of this.

Earth Passed Through Comet During the Night

Chicago, Nov. 24.—(AP)—The earth passed through what is left of Biela's comet last night and might never have known it except for a shower of meteors which burned up brightly and harmlessly in the upper air.

The earth, a compact body compared with a comet, which is a filmy affair composed of small rocks and gases, usually of lesser density even than air, went through the heavens like a bullet through a fog cloud, the earth's dense air burning the comet's constituents miles over head, leaving floating luminous clouds to sift slowly downward as cosmic dust.

The comet, named for Von Biela, who observed it in 1826, came into the solar system out of outer space ages ago and was "captured" by the giant planet Jupiter, through the force of gravity. Jupiter, however, did not entrap it, but forced it into its original orbit, so that it never got away into space again, but moved around the sun in a computed period of 6.7 years.

In 1846 the comet separated into two parts which have not been seen since 1852, but when a meteoric shower in late November occurs, astronomers assume that the earth is passing through fragments of the comet.

ONE WORD IS TOO OFTEN PROFANED—

For me to profane it.
One feeling too falsely disdained
For thee to disdain it.
One hope is to like despair
For prudence to smother
And pity from thee more dear
Than that from another.
I can give not what men call love;
But wilt thou accept not
The worship the heart lifts above
And the heavens reject not;
The desire of the moth for the star,
Of the night for the morrow,
The devotion of something afar
From the sphere of our sorrow?
—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Melius Acclaimed in Operatic Debut

Th many Dixon friends of Madame Luella Mellius of Chicago, who has appeared in recital here and who took a fine interest in the late Miss Orleans Newcomer, will be greatly pleased to learn of the acclaim with which she was greeted in her debut in grand opera in Chicago last week. Concerning her work, Edward Moore, musical critic of the Chicago Tribune, wrote:

For nearly eight years Amelita Galli-Curci has been an almost unqualified operatic admiration of mine. Thursday night another artist came near to taking her place in my professional affections. She is a Chicagoan, at least a former Chicagoan, named Luella Mellius. Curiously enough, the event took place in the same opera, Verdi's "Rigoletto." In former days Luella Mellius went by the name of Luella Chilson Ohrman. Under the one name or the other she used to make concert appearances hereabouts, and she was good. In fact, she was uncommonly good. Since that time she has been, apparently successful, at the operatic doors of Europe. Last night she made her American operatic debut at the Auditorium.

It often has been noted that the Chicagoan who aspires to operatic honors has just about the hardest time of his or her life when the hour comes to sing opera in Chicago. I do not believe that Mme. Mellius had any less ordeal than any of the others. No one can deny that in her first appearance, the scene between her and Formich in the second act of the opera, she was preoccupied, not to say breathless.

But as she attained serenity, got her second wind, as we say in athletics, there was much the same sort of thing as happened when Galli-Curci made her first appearance here. There was quality of voice of a kind to fall in love with. There was a range that made light of all the notes that Verdi wrote into his score, and a flexibility that made them seem like the first principles of singing. By the time she had finished her scene with Charles Hackett and had embarked on the justly famous "Cava Nome," the evening was one of the pleasant, not to say exciting events of this or any other season.

I do not wish to take up your and my time discussing technical matters of singing, but Mme. Mellius is a quite astonishing coloratura singer. Cascading displays pour out with the most disdainful ease; her trill is something to marvel at for its accuracy and quality. And everything is delivered in this warm, caressing voice of hers.

Wherefore, as nearly as can be told from the first item of an at present unknown repertoire, another Chicago singer arrived without argument.

W. M. M. OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH—

The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. J. E. Traber at her home on Lincoln Way. Mrs. E. T. Leith will have the paper on "The Mountaineers."

Twenty-fifth Wedding Date was Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Richardson, 801 Third street, delightfully observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday evening, entertaining a company of friends at their home. There were guests for four tables of bridge. Yellow chrysanthemums were the beautiful decorations for the occasion.

Mrs. Louis Frank won the ladies' favor for high score at bridge; H. C. Bartholomew won the favor for high score for the men; and Mrs. Will Hintz won the consolation favor. A delicious two-course luncheon was a pleasing incident of the evening. The guests present made the host and hostess the gift of a handsome silver sandwich tray as a remembrance of the date and token of their high regard. The entire evening proved one of great pleasure to all present and on departing all wished Mr. and Mrs. Richardson many happy returns of the day.

DIXON WOMAN'S CLUB TO MEET—

The members of the Dixon Woman's club will meet Saturday afternoon at the Christian church. Miss Lucy Martrath of Chicago, an artist, is to address the club on Art. It will also be Guest Day and each member is privileged to entertain a guest on that day, so a large attendance is expected.

Miss Glessner Entertained Club

The J. F. F. club members were happily entertained Thursday evening at the home of Miss L. O. Glessner with a Thanksgiving dinner. Decorations appropriate to the season were most attractive. After the sumptuous dinner cards and games of various kinds were enjoyed until a late hour.

WERE ENTERTAINED IN MENDOTA SATURDAY—

AMERICAN WAR MOTHERS TO MEET—

The American War Mothers will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. Mary Walker, 1428 Rock Island Road. All mothers of World War boys are invited to attend these meetings.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

We all know the chronic worrier! The woman who always sees calamity ever ahead. Each new event that comes along or threatens to come along, is for her a new matter of apprehension.

To be sure most of the things she worries about never happen, and the real problems of her life are not the things she foresaw in time to fear.

But the fact remains that she squanders her vitality and her nervous system, maybe ruins her good digestion, and brings wrinkles into her face, worrying.

And she accomplishes nothing with all this tremendous waste of emotion. Things happen just as they would have if she could have remained calm and tranquil about things.

Life is very short. We can't afford to squander the two resources which make it most pleasant, our good health and our good looks. Consequently we can't indulge in worrying any more than we can in too much rich food or too riotous living.

The thing which causes us to worry is either something that can be remedied, or can't. The thing to do is to look it squarely in the face. Swallow an unpleasant truth or so is necessary, but get down to the issue.

If the cause cannot be changed, there is only one thing to do—don't shut it out of your consciousness. Just close your mind to it, and let the blow fall when and where it will. Since you can't stop it, you might at least save your strength for the finish.

But most of our worries are avoidable. We worry because we suddenly think two hours after we left the house, that we maybe didn't turn off the electric iron in the kitchen, or because we have a house full of company coming in the evening, and nothing seems ready, or because the children won't eat their vegetables, but will fill up on candy, or any number of small things that are the result of our own carelessness or our inattention to duty.

One way to keep from worrying is to keep to mind and muscles occupied. We owe it to ourselves to have a good long, brisk walk in the fresh air every day. If we don't dance, swim, we should not neglect the good old daily dozen, and all the various exercises that keep the body supple and the waistline under control.

We need to keep our thoughts occupied by good reading, and by interest in what is going on about us.

Which brings me down to the best remedy I know—just think about someone else who has a considerably heavier load to carry than you have. And in a short time, your own worries will seem small and inconsequential, and you will get back your perspective.

HEW TO THE LINE.

The hand may be the hand of Esau, but the voice is the voice of Jacob, and any effort to deal with Robert M. LaFollette, Jr.'s relationship with the republican party from any other viewpoint is in error. The hand may be the hand of Bobbie, but the voice is the voice of Robert.

When the caucuses of the houses of the new congress were held, the republican laid down a line for action. It is up to them to hew to that line.

There has been some talk to the effect that the younger Robert should be accepted as one whose record is a blank, as one who must be taken into the fold as a republican until he offends in the manner in which his father offended. This notwithstanding the fact that he was part and parcel of the campaign of his father in opposition to the republican party in 1924.

Only eyes of a republican patriarch as dim as those of Isaac could fail to see that the hand goes with the voice, for even the new senator himself has attempted no disguise. The burden of his campaign song was, Though the hand may seem to be mine, the voice is that of my father.

As long as republican leaders temporize with that kind of insurgency, just so long will they have that kind of insurgency with which to deal.

To compromise is one thing, to temporize is another. After so long a time the leaders decided that they had caught this band off the reservation and that they should be kept there. This is no time to withdraw the guard.

If Robert LaFollette, Jr., is a republican, let him prove it. The burden of proof is upon him, not up the party.

Nicholas Longworth, the caucus choice for speaker of the house of representatives in its next session, has let it be known that he has no notion of relaxing the vigil in the house. There is no reason for relaxing in the senate. Senators who are still within the lines, but who opposed fixing the status of the deserters as men out of the republican party, are said to be contemplating a movement to allow the erring ones to return, but the senators in error have shown no signs of repentance.

The republican senators must hew to the line or stultify themselves.

RADIO REGULATION.

American business men have been insisting vociferously for some time that "government should let business alone." Business might accomplish almost anything, they have suggested, if only it could make its own rules.

Yet here comes the giant young radio industry, insisting with tears in its eyes that the government of commerce exercise the authority. The radio magnates profess their eagerness to obey whatever rules the secretary of commerce shall see fit to impose.

"I feel that you are giving too much power to one man," says Mr. Hoover modestly. And the radio men protest that they are not.

Never was there a better example of the fact that much modern business needs public regulation. Many a big business would soon find itself in a heap of trouble if the government really "let it alone." It is merely a question of how much regulation is needed by any industry at any time.

IMPROVING THE OTHER FELLOW.

A thoughtful jurist, retiring from the bench after many years' service, makes these observations:

"We are too anxious to make the other fellow good, rather than make ourselves better. If all of us were strict with ourselves and liberal and tolerant toward others, we would not need so many laws.

"Harm done by over-zealous propagandists is just as great as that done by malicious evil-doers."

Truly the world has been over-propagandized since 1924, and America in particular. Just as truly most of us have done too much minding of the other fellow's business and too little of our own.

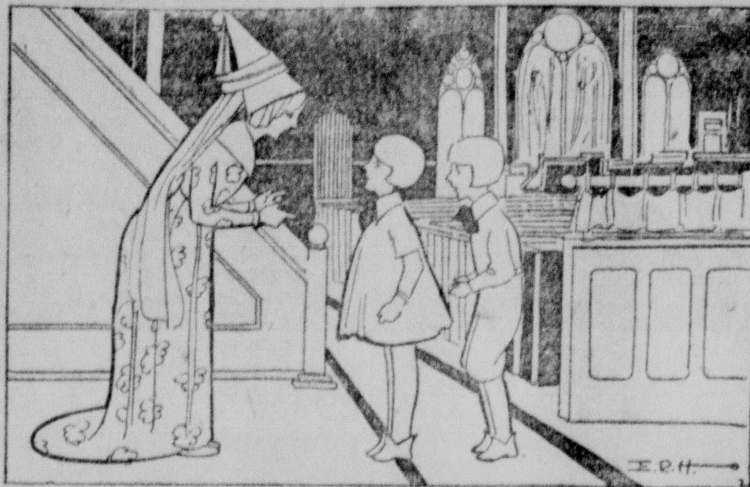

Every person's first job is making himself a good citizen. "The duty of another," says a wise old book, "is full of danger."

Secretary Mellon has issued an order effective December 31 revoking every federal alcohol permit, permits to be renewed or to be canceled permanently according to whether or not there have been violations of the prohibition law by holders of these permits. There is project that certain holders of permits will carry the matter to the courts, seeking injunction against cancellation of the permits. The secretary should be upheld, however, as it is known there has been persistent violations of law by not a few holders of permits. And those who have not violated the law are in line for renewal of permits.

Emma Goldman, deported to Russia in 1919, and going there as a friend of bolshevism, is now in England, having been glad after experience in Russia to get away from there. She has written a book denouncing bolshevism, especially the bolshevik rulers, whose government by tyranny, cruelty and deceit made her to get out of the country almost broken-hearted. She was a pronounced anarchist in this country, but her disillusionment was complete when she saw and experienced the way in which anarchy works when it gets control of a nation.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

"Oh, my dears, what would we have done if you hadn't come," she whispered in an excited voice.

The Twins followed Mister Blue Cap down the steps that led from the picture of the garden, to the floor of the picture gallery.

The little fairy then closed the glass and locked it with a small key which he put into a lock in the gold frame.

Morgiana waved good-bye to the Twins and Ali Baba and his wife had gone back into the house.

When the children looked again, it was just as the catalogue said, "The picture of a Girl in a Garden."

Morgiana was sitting on the stone bench gazing silently at the flowers. Behind her were the tall blue jars where the forty thieves had hidden.

"There is much more in pictures than people know about," said Nancy.

"That's right," nodded Mister Blue Cap. "What you don't see counts more than what you do see. But my, oh my! Look at the wedding picture! They all seem to be waiting for us. Those two children haven't arrived yet, as sure as you're born. I do believe that you Twins will have to be page and flower girl after all."

So saying the little fairyman ran up the steps of the wedding picture and unlocked the glass—or I should say—the glass door.

It swung outward and the Twins found themselves inside a beautiful church. The organ was playing softly and everywhere there were flowers that smelled quite as delightful as the flowers in Morgiana's garden.

The church was filled with people who seemed to be patiently waiting. Suddenly a lady came out of a little side door that you couldn't see in the picture at all. Indeed, you had to get right inside the picture before you could notice the door.

"Oh, my dears, what would we have done if you hadn't come!" she whispered in an excited voice. "The other children must have missed their train or something, for they are not here. But fortunately their clothes are here, and I am sure they will fit you exactly. Will you do it?"

"What, please?" asked Nick.

"Be the page and the flower girl at the wedding!" said the lady.

"Sure!" said Nick obligingly. Soon Nick was arrayed like a prince in a white satin suit. He carried a pillow on which lay a wedding ring.

Nancy was dressed like a pink rose and carried a little basket of rose petals which she scattered as she walked down the aisle before the bride.

It was a grand wedding and the bride and groom seemed very happy. "Can't you stay and go to the reception?" and have some wedding cake?" said the bride before she drove away.

"I'm afraid not," said Mister Blue Cap. "We must all be going. We have some journeys to take and it is getting late."

"Journeys!" laughed the bride. "I am going on one journey. How can you go on more than one at a time?"

It was hard for the fairyman to explain.

France once more learns the unwell-learned lesson of the stubbornness of facts.

The expenses which make a capital levy necessary to balance the budget are all popular expenses in and money, that too few can meet them. And Sir Arthurnot claims that they are too high for the mental digestion of the students.

And yet, they are not even high enough, if graduates are to be turned out, after a brief internship, into the independent care of the sick. They have to learn too much, and yet it is not enough.

The remedy, necessarily is to change the system. The old individual practice of medicine has outgrown, not only the conditions of society, but the science of medicine itself. Young men ought to be able to enter the practice of medicine with a better-grounded, but still incomplete medical education.

Well, old man, for once something has happened which is a whooping good story about the Prescott's, and I don't think it will get into the papers, at least it hasn't gotten in as yet.

You know, of course, all about the fact that I consented to allow the producers of Paula Perier's pictures, to take some sequences of her picture at the plant.

I telegraphed the news to you at the time and since then every newspaper in the United States has carried Associated Press reports on the story.

Leslie had intended to do some entertaining for Paula for since Sally Atherton came back from Los Angeles, she has done nothing but sing the praises of Miss Perier, and you know that Leslie took a great fancy to her when she was here before.

At the last moment, however, Leslie received an invitation from Ruth Burke who expects a baby very soon, to come over and see her. The circumstances surrounding it made it almost impossible for her to refuse.

Ever since Ruth knew that she was going to have a child, Walter has acted like a damn fool. He has kept telling her that he knows something terrible is going to happen either to his wife or to the baby. I think he has had the worst case of fear that I've ever known. Ruth got so nervous over Walter's prognostications that she just couldn't live with him and finally got him to consent to go on a fishing trip. He went only on the condition that Leslie would come and stay with her while he was gone.

As it was only to be for about ten days, Leslie thought she ought to go but I was trying to make her see that it was foolish, especially as Miss Perier was coming here just at this time. Then Walter, to complicate matters, had to go and get himself shot in the leg.

Of course, Ruth went all to pieces and sent a preematory message for Leslie. You know that Ruth has always come to Leslie under any circumstances and consequently Leslie had to return the favor.

I confess I was selfish enough not to want her to go for I had a feeling that probably something would happen that would kick up some kind of a scandal for Paula and me.

Well, Fate did her darndest to bring it about but she failed this time.

RE-DISCOVERING ILLINOIS

By LESTER B. CROSBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce

Surprises come thick and fast when you start to take an inventory of Illinois. How many of the 6,500,000 residents of Illinois know, for example, that at Savanna, a city of 7,500 persons in Carroll County on the Mississippi River, the federal government has stored $150,000,000 in war materials?

How many know that Uncle Sam has, just north of Savanna, a thirteen mile long heavy gun range where he can go out and shoot his cannon, try out his high explosives and test his dynamite? How many know that Uncle Sam's Savanna Proving Ground as it is called, covers an area of 13,172 acres and that the plant cost $5,000,000?

When the world war came on one of the lessons learned was that no nation, in this highly complex day, can go to war successfully against any other large nation unless it has a huge rerouted to take the shortest line to destination.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul terminal handles approximately 175,000 tons of less than carlot shipments of freight yearly. Being a river town it has boat service on the Mississippi. A deep water channel enables river freight boats to land downtown.

Savanna lies in the proposed bird and fish sanctuary district, fathered by the Isaak Walton League and other friends of the nation's wild life. It is an amazingly picturesque district.

Starting just north of Savanna are those high rock cliffs known as the Palsades. Here one finds some rock formations which, were they in districts widely advertised, would be famous. But beautiful as this district is, such rocks as the Twin Sisters, Indian Head and the Open Bible are between Savanna and Mt. Carroll. It made up of persons from all over Carroll county who seek a bit of that thing known as better living.

History says that the first settler arrived in what is Savanna today in 1828 and that the town was laid out in 1835. The business district is on the lower land along the river front. Homes rise in rows on the terraced hillsides and some of them perch on the hilltops 200 feet above the Mississippi.

Anxious for industrial development, the Savanna Commerce Association has acquired title to eighty acres of land, the purpose of which is to supply sites for new factories which may need nursing to bring them along. Other good factory sites are also available.

Savanna plans, starting next spring to do more to tell touring motorists of the scenic wonders of the district. It lies at almost the tip-end of that vast unglaciated area which has resulted in a wonderful island of scenic beauty surrounded by the rather level plans of the Central West.

Here the landscape stands out in all that ruggedness and sharp outline which must have been common in pre-glacial times before the northern states were leveled off by ice and melting floods.

(This is the thirtieth of a series of articles prepared by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce entitled "Re-Discovering Illinois." Their purpose is to benefit, build and develop the state as a whole. The next will be published soon.)

Nebraska Legionnaire Against Emergency Bill

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Opposition to the emergency officers' retirement bill, one of the principal proposals in the American Legion legislative program, was voiced today by Representative Simmons, republican of Nebraska, former American Legion department commander of Nebraska.

The measure would benefit less than 1900 of the 900 disabled emergency officers, Mr. Simmons said, and "will give them a rate of disability far in excess of the rate of pay given by the government as compensation to the balance of emergency officers and to all of the men who served as emergency enlisted men."

The first dental college for women in the Philippines was opened this year in Manila in connection with the Centro Escolar de Senoritas, with a woman dentist as dean.

The district can now be reached from the east on concrete. Route 80, soon to be built, from Rock Island to Galena, will pass directly through Savanna and the Palsades district skirting for some distance the Mississippi River which in these reaches is blue water and filled with islands upon which are thick tree growths. These are known as the "Thousand Islands" of the Mississippi.

Savanna gets its name from a level plain of prairie grass which the first settlers found to the south. A part of this area has given a site for the city's extensive railroad terminals. On others of these level fields, deposits of silt and sand, a great melon culture has grown up.

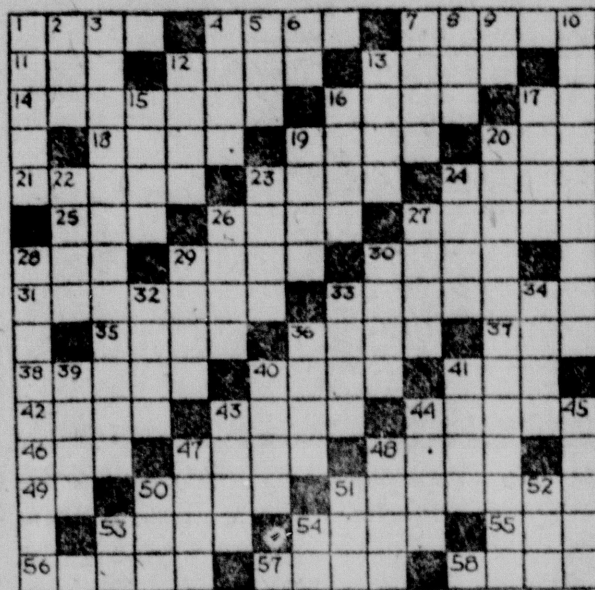

Here we find 2,000 acres of finest watermelon land and fields of muskmelons. A pickle factory was started last spring and the first summer saw 30 carloads of pickles go out. This industry is believed to have an excellent future here.

On both sides of the Mississippi, to the south, are long stretches of low lands where the verdure grows thick and there is good shooting. Gun clubs where ducks are the prize thrive.

supply of sodium nitrate. Times have changed since David beamed Goliath on the frontal bone with a rock.

So Uncle Sam has built on his land north of Savanna the greatest storage pit for sodium nitrate in the world. It is 1600 feet long, 200 feet wide and 9 feet deep. Built of reinforced concrete it will hold about $12,000,000 worth of nitrate at peace-time prices.

Here are the measurements of just a few of Uncle Sam's buildings at Savanna—forty warehouses, 99x400 feet; forty-seven magazines, 50x300 feet; thirty high explosive magazines, 25x80 feet.

Major George F. Lemon, in command, maintains on the reservation fifty soldiers and sixty employees. In time of war this would be augmented to 5,000 men almost overnight. The purpose of this mighty development, started in 1917 is threefold: 1—A proving ground for guns and ammunition. 2—A depot for supplies. 3—A shell loading plant.

Savanna is a crossing point for railroads at the Mississippi. It is a division point and an icing point for transcontinental fruit and meat trains. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad has yards big enough to handle 4,000 freight cars at a time; the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, 2,000 cars.

Statistics show that the St. Paul line handles through Savanna more than 1,000,000 freight cars a year and the Burlington something like half that number. These yards are used as a gathering point for freight east and west. Here they are collected and

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 50c.

FEW KICKS LEFT IN MID-WESTERN FOOTBALL GAMES

Notre Dame vs Nebraska Holds Interest of Gridiron Fans

Chicago, Nov. 24—(AP)—The fading football season has a kick or two left in the midwest, even though the Western Conference teams have hibernated.

The Notre Dame-Nebraska game in Lincoln and games of importance in the Missouri Valley Conference are the thrill furnishers, while interest also follows the awarding of letters and electing of captains in the Big Ten as the season's aftermath.

Notre Dame, sans Christy Flanagan, half back, and Enright, fullback, starts for the Husker ballfield today. Flanagan has a fractured shoulder and a wrenched ankle.

The Corn Huskers, like Notre Dame, defeated once, are expecting a home coming crowd of 45,000.

Kansas Aggies clash with Iowa State at Ames while Grinnell and Washington meet in St. Louis. Other games between minor colleges are expected to settle various conference title disputes.

Rockne Plans Ten Games
Notre Dame plans ten games next year, six of which are announced with the Army, Nebraska, Penn State, Georgia Tech, Minnesota and the Quince Marines.

In the Western Conference, the coveted letters are being bestowed with attendant fanfare of dinners, speeches and season postmortems.

New captains are Wallie Marks of Chicago and Benny Friedman of Michigan.

Michigan's team is hailed by Fielding H. Yost, its veteran coach, as the greatest he ever handled. The Wolverine record of 227 points to 3 scored against it, he thinks stands alone among major team achievements.

Northwestern, only team to conquer Michigan, is content to stand on its record as its reward and not quibble about its place in the Big Ten team standing. Coach Thistlethwaite says the Purple makes no claim to conference honors. The team is the best in years and is satisfied with its three victories and one defeat he says.

ROCHELLE HIGH TEAM IS FETED DURING WEEK

Victorious Eleven to be Guests at Banquet Thursday

Rochelle, Nov. 23—Rochelle high school's victorious football team, who won 3 to 0 from Savanna here Saturday, are being feted this week. Monday they were guests of Ben L. Berve, manager of the Majestic Theater to see Harold Lloyd in "The Freshman," and on Thursday evening R. F. Harter and H. S. Bain will tender the team a banquet.

Two football games still remain on the Rochelle schedule. On Thanksgiving day the squad goes to Ansonia and on Saturday St. Mary's Academy comes here for a game.

This year marks the final football appearance in high school of nine local seniors: Captain "Danny" Heitner, star left end; "Ken" Castle, center; Don Bain and Jim Rice, guards; "Chuck" Rhoades, quarterback; "Pony" Leonard and "Olley" Pentz, halfbacks; Leltoy Jones, substitute center; "Major" Hoopes, utility.

However with twelve first string men returning Rochelle should enjoy a fine 1926 season. The men are Pierce Lamb, Daum, Dale, Langhoff, Eshbaugh, Palmer, Landsee, Taylor, Carpenter, Delos Langhoff, Flannigan and Vaughn.

Basketball practice for an eighteen game schedule starts this week.

Among those attending the Notre Dame vs Northwestern University football game at South Bend, Indiana, Saturday were: Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hooley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Ben L. Berve, Mr. and Mrs. George Unger, Edward T. Bensch.

Phil W. May and Clarence Tilton attended the University of Chicago vs University of Wisconsin football game at Chicago Saturday, and Mrs. May and Mrs. Tilton attended a matinee.

Fred E. Gardner officiated as head linesman at the Indiana-Purdue university football game at Bloomington, Indiana, which resulted in a 6 to 0 tie, Saturday.

New Record in Cross-Country Run Yesterday

New York, Nov. 24—(AP)—Fifty seconds were torn from the record for the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. annual cross country run here yesterday when William Tibbitts of Harvard and Jim Loucks fought neck and neck for almost half the distance, the Crimson winning by a scant yard at the end of the six mile hill and dale journey.

Syracuse, as a team, won handsily with five men in the first 18 finishers. The victory gave Syracuse its third conquest in this event in four years. Pittsburgh, which won the title in 1924 finished in second place and Harvard was third.

The surprise came in the performance of MacAuley Smith of Yale, individual winner last year with the then record time of 31 minutes, 24 seconds. Five men finished under that time yesterday, Tibbitts, Loucks, Hillman of Maine, Kerr, of Pittsburgh and Luttman of Harvard. Smith had to be satisfied with eleventh place.

ZUPPKE SAYS HE WILL BAR STARS FROM HIS TEAM

No More $100,000 Men to Play, He Tells U. of I. Team

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 24—(AP)—"No other $100,000 player is going to be on one of my teams," Coach Robert Zuppke said last night at the annual dinner of the University of Illinois football team, at which Red Grange was present.

The veteran coach did not elaborate on this statement, but he expressed the opinion that the famous carrot top, who had promised to return to school to complete his education "will no more graduate from Illinois than will the Kaiser return to power in Germany."

Grange left the hall in the midst of Zuppke's remarks but explained that the exit was necessary to permit him to return to Chicago where he is training with the Chicago Bears for his professional appearance Thanksgiving.

"I have nothing against professional football," Zuppke said, but he believed that in the long run Grange would cash in more in some other career than the one he had selected, adding that his only regret was that Red would not finish his university course.

"Undoubtedly Grange is one of the greatest football players of all time and the greatest Illinois has produced, but from now on he will travel a different course than he has here and will be forced to pick his own companions."

Grange told his teammates that there was nothing he would rather do than play football for Illinois, but that now he was through, he would do the next best thing and play with a team that has many old Illinois men.

"That can't compare with the pleasure of three years under Coach Zuppke," he added.

Grange paid a compliment to his teammates, saying it was only through the cooperation of all that the team had made its showing.

HIGHER RATES OF LODGE ARE BLOCKED NOW

Court Order Holds up Increase for Mystic Workers

Concerning the hearing held in Peoria recently on the motion of the supreme officers of the Mystic Workers for dismissal of the temporary injunction secured by the Class A. Relief Society and in which Dixon Mystic Workers are interested, the Peoria Star says:

A motion to dissolve a temporary injunction restraining officers of the Mystic Workers of the World from increasing dues was denied by Judge John M. Neilhaus in the branch court. The hearing lasted a day and a half.

Judge T. N. Green, late in August, granted the injunction on application of Class A members of the fraternal society, who claimed the proposed increase discriminated against them.

Injunction Justified
The plaintiff's bill set out sufficient allegations to justify continuing of the temporary restraining order in effect until a hearing in the plaintiff's suit can be held, Judge Niehaus said.

Class A members bring the suit to allege the proposed raise in rates is unreasonable and intended to be so burdensome as to force them to surrender their policies.

The majority of the Class A members are too old to take other insurance or to pay the proposed higher rates, according to the plaintiffs. It is alleged the proceedings in voting higher rates were illegal.

$2,000,000 Transferred
A resolution declaring an emergency existed and transferring a $2,000,000 fund, it is alleged, was fraudulently passed by the board of directors.

Class A members claim the $2,000,000 fund was built up by their members.

NEWS FROM DIXON

Basket Ball Season Starts this Evening

Basket ball in Dixon gets its start tonight when the seniors of the Y. M. C. A. play an independent team from Sterling. This is a fore runner of many interesting games this season. Several old stars will be seen in action in the game tonight and still more of the old timers will be seen in the line up in the near future. Tonight Wickey, Shepherd, Young, 'Doc' Segner, Chas. Kertz, Harry Kertz and other brilliant lights in the Dixon basket ball world will get to put all of the old time skill and speed into the game to see if the team from Sterling can stand the pace. There are several other players who will get to play tonight if the going isn't too hard for the first team. Players of other clubs have shown up very well on the local floor and it is hoped that a combination of these little known men may get into action before the final whistle blows.

Local Volley Ballers Go to Sterling Tonight

The Y. M. C. A. volleyball team of Dixon will go to Sterling tonight to try to redeem themselves of the defeat here last week by the hard hitting volleyball players of the Sterling Association. The games were close last week and if Dixon does not fall down on the passing end of the game victory will undoubtedly come home to roost. Potter, Weiss and Schidberg will probably take the spikers position. Miller, Lang, Carlson, Hirsch, Frazier, and Snapp will be on hand to serve as passers and to substitute where they are needed. The team will go to Sterling as soon after five o'clock as possible and exist after a dinner and a general good time the games will be played.

Methodists Will Meet Christian Team Tonight

The Methodists are leading the other three teams in the church bowling league at the Y. M. C. A. and it is hoped by them that they can retain their place by defeating the Christians in their Regular match tonight at 7:20. The Christians were second to the Independent team in the starter league and it is known that they were traveling in fast company when holding us as they did. The scheduled match between the Christians and the Lutherans for Thanksgiving has been postponed.

SYNOPSIS

A mysterious craft halts the yacht in Long Island Sound and six men climb aboard. It has been a night of wild adventure, with much talk of bootlegging and revenue officers. On the yacht are Connemara Moore, David Lacy, McTish, Pooh, Doc and Sweetie, all strangers to each other except Doc and Sweetie. Connemara was to announce her engagement to night, or be disinherited. Instead, she stole away from Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home—only to endure all this.

For a second the eyes of the girl under the white turban, no whiter now than her face, peered over the cockpit, trying to make out the types of those engaged in the melee. A glimpse of the one in advance she caught—a big thick-chested man, caustic, with a torn and disreputable jersey that seemed several sizes too small for him, and a battered derby on his head, two big hands of hands flailing through the air.

Now Connie had never seen any fights except on the screen, and in the daily public turmoil of our subways. And this had a sort of private character about it, out here on the lonely water, to which the Celt in her rose with a queer exultation. Suddenly she was excited rather than frightened. Her breath came faster, and at that moment she became aware of Lacy engaged with the leader. The Swede was the heavier of the two, but Lacy seemed to Connemara's anxious eyes to be more than holding his own, in spite of that handicap. There was a sure drive to his arms, left and right, left and right, to ribs and face, several blows almost landing on the point of the jaw, which she remembered to have heard was important; and all this while he kept lightly inside of the other's wild swings which flailed around him, missing him entirely or else only shaving his well-modelled head.

It was pretty, she thought, even in the midst of her concern; she could almost understand why women could attend prize fights. Only, even now, she could not, somehow, make herself believe the scene before her was quite real. After a time she would wake up back at Moorelands, in her own bed, and there'd be still that ridiculous problem about Salt and Bing to decide for Aunt Celimena. Then a little cry escaped her and her whole body tensed. The Swede was falling, like a bull she had seen once in a Spanish arena—that same keel and shudder, drop to the knees, the same sickening thud! He was down—motionless.

Impulsively Connemara clambered out of the cockpit, and at once regretted her precipitousness. She had entirely forgotten the others on the deck, who for reasons of revenge had piled on the doughty Scot, and now, having apparently finished him, were climbing all over Lacy from behind.

But it was too late to retreat to her refuge in the cockpit. She was conscious of a pair of eyes in the ugliest face she had ever seen, glaring at her. The owner of the eyes, with a gorilla-like hunching of head, neck and shoulder, started toward her. Back, back she retreated to the rail and reached it just as McTish coming to, slid overboard.

A moment only she calculated, though "calculated" is hardly the word—it was her instinct that was functioning quite as rapidly and as wildly as her heart was pounding—then she did it. There was another splash overboard. McTish, just breaking water after his long dive, heard the splash, and an instant afterward the sound of someone swimming a few feet from him, with easy, strong strokes that kept up effortlessly with his own. He had a wild hope that it might be Lacy; instead the voice of Connemara, a breathless little ghost of a whisper, reached him across the wave-splashed blackness.

"I don't know where we're going," it announced in soft bravado, "but I'm on my way."

CHAPTER XI

Kermis Roosevelt

By Kermit Roosevelt

When Mr. Brewster turned away from the telephone with that last startling information about Connemara's flight, there was a moment of decidedly tense silence, which was finally broken by Aunt Celimena.

"There—must be some mistake," she said in a trembling voice almost ludicrously unlike her usual dictatorial assurance. "What are we going to do? We—we can't just stand around and wait for news."

Bing Carrington took an impulsive step forward. "You're not to worry," he said gently. "Of course we'll do something, Miss Moore. It seems to me that the first move is to have a talk with that desk sergeant at police headquarters. I'll take one of your cars, if I may, and go right over."

But Aunt Celimena had herself in hand once more.

"I am going with you," she announced with determination. Bing looked doubtful. "If I have anything to report, I'll telephone you at once, of course," he demurred. "But I really don't think—"

"It's not necessary that you should—" Aunt Celimena was recovering rapidly as may be seen. "I wish to talk to that policeman myself."

"In that case, Miss Moore," Mr. Brewster put in nervously, "I feel sure I had better accompany you." Aunt Celimena nodded absently, fixing an inquiring eye on Saltonstall Adams, who had as yet taken no active part in the discussion.

The latter roused himself hurriedly from the dazed abstraction which had enveloped him ever since that soft and shining red curl of Connemara's had slipped out of its tissue paper package into his astonished palm.

"Naturally I'm going, too," he said simply. "Shall we keep together, Carrington, or divide our forces?"

Better keep together at first," Bing decided. "Later we'll see."

It was Bing, with his usual cocksure assertiveness, who fell naturally into command of the situation, and none of the other three cared, apparently, to dispute him. Even Aunt Celimena seemed rather relieved than otherwise, in spite of her earlier snappishness, to rely on his judgment now.

Therefore, ten minutes later, with Bing at the wheel, the search party of four was heading by motor for the Greenwich police headquarters. Here, to their relief, news awaited them. The stolen car had been traced to the ferry.

"At least we'll know we're not travelling in the opposite direction, as we might easily have done," Aunt Celimena sighed. She had lost a good deal of her usual belligerency during the short run from Moorelands, as Bing noticed with appreciation. She had become further depressed, too, after a few words exchanged with a very noncommittal and unimpressed desk sergeant in the Greenwich police station. The fact that the hearse presumptive to Moorelands had disappeared without explanation, and under decidedly questionable circumstances, appeared to mean little or nothing in Sergeant Flynn's existence. But he did exhibit a lively curiosity as to why two of the searchers should wear fancy dress under their long polo coats. He seemed, too, to entertain wholly unreasonable suspicions of a slight somewhere, aimed at his official dignity.

Before proceeding further, Bing set to work to raise Bayville by telephone, and after much exasperating delay succeeded in rousing a sleepy Central, but the ferry office wouldn't answer, and apparently no police station existed. So, after a brief consultation with the other searchers, Bing headed the car back to Stamford.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower and hardware magnate, has arranged to have his home managed by a firm of efficiency engineers for a period of two months that he will be away from the city. This without the knowledge of his three grown children, Constance, Billy and Alice, who do not realize the enormity of their father's decision until the arrival of H. HEDGE, efficiency engineer, who takes over their father's suite, turns the library into an office, and proceeds to put "economy and scientific management" into the Brooke household. Hedge has cut off the allowance of Constance and Billy because they refuse to go to work. Alice is still on the payroll at 50 per cent reduction because she is attending school.

Hedge has also been the means of preventing Constance from eloping with Tommy Treadwell. This was done by means of a scientific head ministered to Tommy by Hedge on New Year's morning.

Constance, working at the other for it simply flashed upon her. Yet it was the solution of the whole terrible problem!

"Back up!" she whispered to herself. "Play the part. This is where you win!"

The efficiency man waited politely for her to reconsider the secretarial proposition.

She steeled herself to the task, summoned all the Spartan in her nature, and smiled at him.

"I had forgotten about your need of a secretary," she said.

"It still exists, Miss Brooke."

"Then show me what to do, please."

It came so suddenly that the efficiency man found it necessary to steady himself against the desk. He had been prepared for battle; not so subject to anger.

"Why—er—yes," he said. "Glad to show you. There's a lot of back work, you know."

Constance, working at the other

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I WISH," said the efficiency man on the day after New Year.

"That you would reconsider."

He was addressing Constance Brooke, who had entered the "office" for the purpose of getting a book.

Since the episode of the courtyard there had been no speech between them.

Constance had been having meals sent to her room, proceeding to which H. Hedge interposed no objection. He was in a mood to make concessions; he was thankful for the gloom of the back stairs.

Constance looked at him sharply and flushed.

"I have reconsidered," she said shortly. "I shall not marry."

The efficiency man's pulse skipped a beat, but he preserved an exterior calm.

"Very good," he nodded. "I presume you refer to Mr. Treadwell."

"To anybody—everybody!"

Her back was turned toward him and her fingers were running lightly over the books on a shelf.

"That is what I should call a wholesale reconsideration," he remarked judiciously. "It is sufficiently inclusive to be ominous. The world will wear mourning. However—"

He paused as he noted the deepening pink of her ears.

"However—"

He paused again, this time to observe more closely the pulse of her well-set head. Constance dropped a book on the floor and stooped to recover it.

"However, that is not what I wanted you to reconsider."

She picked up the book and faced him, her cheeks aflame. He was laughing at her, she knew; he had tricked her! Yet his face was impassive and wholly devoid of mirth.

In fact, it was thoughtful. Even in her anger and confusion, she wondered what imperious necessity compelled H. Hedge to be so consistently intolerable.

"What I wanted you to reconsider," he explained, "was your decision not to assume the duties of a secretary in this establishment."

"Oh!" she said faintly.

Yes, he had tricked her! She was raging at herself for having fallen into the snare. Yet how was she to know that he did not intend to refer to the downfall of Tommy Treadwell?

Her own mind had held no other thought for the past twenty-four hours. The whole business of trying to escape from serfdom had humiliated her. She was even angry at Tommy. Perhaps he had done his best—but why hadn't he done better?

He was bigger than H. Hedge; he looked stronger. Why didn't he win? Perhaps efficiency really meant something, after all.

Yet, as she stood confused and exasperated, the turmoil of her mind suddenly resolved itself into calm.

In that instant a great idea was born. Constance was utterly amazed at the discovery. The idea was so striking that she had groped or striven side of the library table, was a disconcerting vision, even to an efficiency man. There was a freshness in her cheeks that suggested a rose-garden. Her gray eyes were steady and serene. Tendrils of hair curled about her ears in a unique way. H. Hedge, decided, for he could not remember having observed a similar phenomenon before. She had a firm, assured way of using her hands that astonished him. They were quite as capable of filing papers as they were of punching a leather bag, in addition to which they were exceptionally well manicured.

Whatever Connie was doing, she was doing willingly, and she was taking orders.

Never a word passed about Tommy Treadwell. The new secretary had apparently forgotten the matter in the intense absorption of her work.

Alice made the initial discovery the very first day. She was home from school early, and glancing in at the library as she passed through the hall, was rooted in her tracks by the spectacle of Constance standing at a file-cabinet with her hands full of papers. The efficiency man was at her elbow and was talking glibly about something; Alice could not hear the words. It was the attentive, almost eager, attitude of Constance that chiefly amazed her.

Whatever Connie was doing, she was doing willingly—and she was taking orders!

The younger sister stole upstairs, a prey to perplexity and foreboding. What she had seen was beyond all belief. It was such an inexplicable thing that she did not even dare to share the secret with Billy, far less to mention the discovery to Constance. But it kept Alice awake for at least an hour after she went to bed.

Billy did not become aware of any unusual development until the day following. It was the middle of the forenoon when he blundered into the library, intending to make a final plea for gasoline money. Constance was sitting at the desk, and the efficiency man was pacing the floor, talking.

Billy halted and opened his mouth involuntarily.

"And make a note of this," H. Hedge was saying. "To notify the servants that hereafter all orders for supplies, in excess of one dollar, must be certified at the office before being delivered to tradesmen."

Constance nodded as she put it down.

"Anything I can do for you?" asked Hedge, as he observed Billy.

"I—hum."

"I didn't understand. Repeat, please."

Billy coughed and stared at his sister, who glanced up, evidently annoyed at the interruption.

"What—are you doing, Connie?" he blurted.

"Working," she answered shortly. "What are you doing?"

The question was disconcerting, and Billy instinctively quailed under it.

"Working?" he repeated dully.

"W-o-r-k-i-n-g," spelled Constance coldly. "What was the last, Mr. Hedge?"

She smiled up at the efficiency man and poised a ready pencil.

"At a moment, Miss Brooke," he answered. "Then, turning to Billy: 'Your sister has taken up her secretarial work in a most admirable spirit. May I ask when you will assume your clerkship?'"

The question was brutal, not because it involved work, but for the reason that it suggested comparison. A secretary may be a very important person. Presidents of the United States have secretaries, who are commonly more important than cabinet officers. If they were not, they would be abolished. A clerk may also be important, but the title lacks something. There is nothing robust or dignified about it. "Secretary Jones" is a personage, even if he is as colorless and insipid as warm water. "Clerk Smith" is nobody, even if he is large, beefy, and soulless, with an intellect of suitable proportions.

Billy brooked no consolation in the eyes of his sister. They were cold and steady. It was obvious that she was annoyed at the interruption.

"We are still on orders for supplies," she reminded H. Hedge. "Is there something more under that head?"

Billy faced about and hurried from the room. He paused in the hall and drew a deep breath. The Brooke family was disgraced!

It did not add to the peace of Billy's mind to discover what he suspected—that, by working, Constance had regained her daily allowance.

His own was suspended, pending that time when he should decide to assume his clerical duties. Thus the two Brooke sisters were again in funds, even though of limited size, while their brother remained penniless.

Billy and Alice hesitated to speak what was in the mind of each, but on one day the tacitly maintained wall of reserve broke down, and they unburdened their thoughts in a far corner of the gymnasium.

Efficiency on a down grade.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower and hardware magnate, arranges with a firm of efficiency engineers to manage his home for a period of two months that he will be away. He falls to impart his plans to his three grown children, Constance, Billy and Alice. They are very unpleasantly surprised when H. HEDGE, efficiency engineer, takes over the care of running the Brooke mansion. Hedge has made himself at home in the private suite of John W. and turned the library into an office. He cut off the allowance of Billy and Constance because they refused to go to work, but permitted Alice to draw one-half her usual amount because she is still going to school.

Constance, ready to quit a losing fight against efficiency, attempts to elope but is stopped by Hedge. She then reconsiders her refusal to work and becomes a secretary. Hedge reinstates 50 per cent of her allowance. Alice and Billy are furious because Constance has apparently come over to be an enemy. They unburden their thoughts today while taking the daily dozen in the gymnasium.

You must say "QUICK QUAKER"

To get true Scotch flavor—famous Quaker Oats flavor—in quick cooking oats

THE difference in breakfast oats is flavor. Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have Scotch flavor.

Quick Quaker has the toasty Scotch flavor that's so wonderful... famous Quaker Oats flavor.

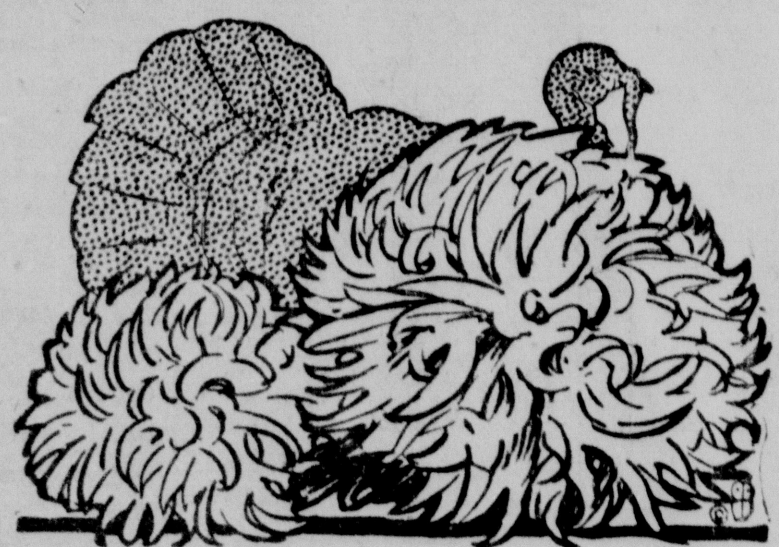

No other brand has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Quaker milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect. Makes all the difference in the world. Quaker Oats spoils folks for ordinary brands of oats. Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. No kitchen muss busy mornings.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

Look for the picture of a Quaker on the oats you get.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

A mite—BUT MIGHTY!

THE RADIO SET of tomorrow, here for you today. And it serves two purposes.

FIRST—It gives you uncommonly fine performance. It has five tubes, and all the power you could wish. In tone, range and every other quality, it has the distinction which you associate with the Atwater Kent name-plate.

SECOND—It is an ornament in any room, in any home. It is beautiful, of course—and, better, it is small. The mahogany cabinet is only 6½ inches high, 5¼ inches deep, 19¾ inches long. You can easily hold it in one hand. You can place it against a row of a dozen books—and the books are the bigger of the two! On a book-case, a table, an end-table, or in the boudoir—anywhere in your home—it is not an intruder. It is utility and beauty made unobtrusive.

We started making this set in the belief that the public would appreciate a radio instrument which would be sturdy and full-powered and also an agreeable companion in the home surroundings. Its instantaneous popularity has even exceeded expectations.

This Receiving Set is the Atwater Kent Model 20 Compact. Your dealer has it and will be glad to show it to you—today.
